Dear David:

As we have almost completed the first lease cycle after working with BottomLine Advantage, I wanted to relate to you how we have fared from the project.

My initial interest in your services was that you guaranteed to save us significantly more than the project fee would be. You used our current costs as your baseline, which we reviewed and approved. In addition, I knew we could pay you over 3 years from the additional savings the project generated. So, in essence, we had no cost in working with you.

You did exceed the Savings Guarantee so we saved even more than I had originally estimated.

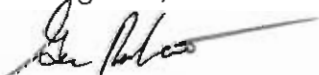

I also estimated that having you complete the project would take far less time for Air Methods which definitely was the case. I also did not have to worry about missing a couple of unknown details that would end up costing us money or equipment headaches.

You provided a Service Level Agreement that helped my vendor and I understand the support expectations and made it easy to measure any support or equipment performance deviations.

I am a firm believer in knowing one's limitations. I suspected that I did not know all the intricacies of the copier industry and my intuition was proved correct. By being involved in various parts of the project, I learned a process and industry details that will help me evaluate future agreements.

From my personal experience, I highly recommend BottomLine Advantage's services.

Regards,
